- The complexity and urgency of the matter
- The nature and monetary value of the subject matter
- The amount of research to be undertaken and of the papers to be perused and drawn amongst others.

Amicable Dispute Resolution

Our clients Time and resources are valuable. Whenever a client presents us with a case problem, we always endeavor where possible, to have the problem resolved amicably, with litigation as a last resort.

The firm has not had to deal with a dispute with any of its clients. In the event of such a dispute, we would prefer recourse to negotiation, mediation and arbitration.

Comprehensive practice excellence

We combine sector specialism with legal excellence to provide the most commercially valuable solutions to our clients' needs.
